Agenda

- Why Change the CIP Data Block?
- CIP Data Block Review Process
- CIP Data Block Layout and Examples
- CIP Data Block Data Elements
- Using the New CIP Data Block for Cataloging
- Points to Consider When Using the CIP Data Block for Cataloging
- Questions and Answers

Why Change the CIP Data Block?

- Recommendations at the 2013 Summer CIP Advisory Group meeting
- Resource Description & Access (RDA) implementation
- CIP E-books Program
- Review utility of card catalog layout
- Review of data elements to see if any could be removed and if any needed to be added

CIP Data Block Review Process

- September 2013: Committee of experts formed
- May – June 2014: Community surveyed
  - 420 responses
  - 69% identified as school or public libraries
- June – December 2014: Committee recommended data elements to retain, remove, and add; proposed new layout
- ALA Midwinter, January 2015: Proposed new layout and data elements released

CIP Data Block Review Process

- January – April 2015: Additional changes made from input received
- April – June 2015: New layout and data elements disseminated to community
- June 8, 2015: New CIP Data Block
- ALA Summer, June 2015 New CIP Data Block shared with interested groups
- September 30, 2015: New CIP Data Block implemented

CIP Data Block Layout

New CIP Data Block Layout : Labels

- Includes labels for related groups of data elements and acronyms for thesauri and classification systems
  - Names, Title, Other titles, Description, Identifiers, Subjects, Classification
  - Identify thesauri and classification systems present in the Subjects and Classification label areas with acronyms
  - Vertical bar (aka “pipe”) - | - separates data elements within each labeled section

New CIP Data Block Layout : Combine Print and Electronic

- For titles with print and electronic versions, there will be one CIP Data Block that includes print and electronic data elements
  - Many titles are published in both formats
  - Librarians and other users of the CIP Data Block will have complete information on all formats of the title
  - Reduces confusion by publishers as to which CIP Data Block to use

New CIP Data Block Layout: LCCN Permalink

- CIP Data Block includes LCCN Permalink for titles selected for LC collections
- LCCN Permalink goes to lcn.loc.gov
- Bibliographic record for title can be selected and electronically sent to the user

CIP Data Block Examples

Points to Consider When Using the CIP Data Block for Cataloging

Where is the Primary Access Point?

- Primary access point, formerly known as “main entry”
  - First-named author in Names section—with relationship designator for creator
    - Binggeli, Corky, author.
  - Author/preferred title combination in Names section
    - Austen, Jane, 1775-1817. Pride and prejudice.
  - Title with no named creator in Title section
    - Better homes and gardens herb gardening.
  - Preferred (uniform) title in Other titles section
    - Building systems for interior designers (2013)

Additional Access Points?

- Added entries (additional access points)
  - Names section—with relationship designators
    - Personal names (700)
    - Corporate names (710/711)
    - Name/title combinations (700)
  - Other titles section
    - Related title access points (730)
    - Uncontrolled related/analytical title access point (740)
    - Series access points (830)
- Order in Names section
  - Order in bibliographic record, e.g. 1XX before 7XX

Where is the Preferred (Uniform) Titles or Variant Title?

- Other titles section contains
- Preferred (uniform) title for a translated work
  - Bible. German. 1745
  - but
  - Austen, Jane, 1775-1817. Pride and prejudice. German
in Names because it is a name/preferred title combination
- Not conventional collective preferred (uniform) titles
Poems. ~~Selections~~
- Variant title
  - 101 dalmations
  - One hundred and one dalmations

Description Specifics

- No more author affiliations
  - Not recorded in the MARC record
- Edition statement?
  - Always first in that section if available
- Date of publication is in brackets?
  - According to RDA, inferred dates are in brackets
- Where is the series title?
  - Look for Series:
- Authorized access point for the series?
  - Other titles section
  - If a name/title access point, in the Names section
